TRONDHEIM

THE ROYAL CAPITAL OF NORWAY

Trondheim was founded by Viking King Olav Tryggvason in AD 997. It was the nation's first capital, and continues to be the historical capital of Norway. The city is surrounded by lovely forested hills, and the Nidelven River winds through the city. The charming old streets at Baklandet bring you back to architectural traditions and the atmosphere of days gone by. It has been, and still is, a popular pilgrimage site, due to the famous Nidaros Cathedral. Trondheim is the 3rd largest city in Norway – vivid and lively, with everything a big city can offer, but still with the friendliness of small towns. While medieval times still have their mark on the center, innovation and modernity shape it. Discover a variety of museums, historical sights, activities accompanied by hospitable locals and get proof to having visited Norway's food capital.

BAKKLANDET:

Bakklandet is also known as the oldest part of the city centre. It is the name for the colourful wooden houses and narrow streets along the east side of river Nid, right where the Old Town Bridge from 1861 is located. The red Old Town Bridge was first constructed as a draw bridge in 1681 after the big fire. The area is most charming and has a special atmosphere. Here you will also find the first bicycle lift in the world called "Trampe".

NIDAROS CATHEDRAL AND THE ARCHBISHOP'S PALACE:

Nidaros Cathedral is the world's northernmost medieval cathedral, and Norway's national shrine with over 1000 years of history. Built over the grave of St. Olav, the cathedral is an important destination for pilgrims since the Middle Ages. Nidaros Cathedral is known for its beautiful stained glass windows, and the magnificent western façade. It was also the coronation church of Norway since 1905 and is now used for the benediction of the reign. The Archbishop's Palace is located right next to Nidaros Cathedral and houses several exhibitions, among them the Crown Regalia. The palace building dates back to the 12th century and served as the residence of the archbishop until the reformation.

SVERRESBORG OPEN AIR MUSEUM:

Sverresborg Open Air Museum with its 90 historical buildings is one of the largest open air museums in Norway. The museum is located in beautiful natural surroundings around the ruins of King Sverre's medieval castle. The Haltdalen Stave church from the 12th century is part of the museum together with many farms from the region Trøndelag as well as a reconstructed city centre of Trondheim. Most of the houses exhibit Norwegian lifestyle during the 17th to 19th century.

Photo: Rockheim

ROCKHEIM - THE NATIONAL MUSEUM OF POPULAR MUSIC:

This spectacular and interactive museum charts the development of contemporary Norwegian music and popular culture from 1950 until today. A visit at Rockheim is a digital and a high tech experience. Here you can take an active part in Norwegian pop and rock history, pass through the decades, listen to music and feel the atmosphere through sound, images, films and exhibits.

KRISTIANSTEN FORTRESS:

Kristiansten Fortress was built to defend Trondheim from the east. The fortress was constructed by Johan Caspar de Cicignon after the big fire in 1681. Construction was finished in 1685 and soon after it was used to protect the city from invading Swedish in 1718. Later it was used as fire-watch and still houses canons that are used for ceremonial salves.

STIFTSGÅRDEN - ROYAL RESIDENCE:

Stiftsgården is the Royal Residence in Trondheim. It is the largest wooden palace in Scandinavia and was built for Cecilie Christine Schøller from 1774 to 1778. Originally it was not supposed to be used by the Royal Family, but as Lady Schøller moved to Denmark soon after the mansion was finished and it was later sold to the state and used as a public building. In 1906 when a place such as Stiftsgården was needed for the preparation of the coronation of the king, it became the Royal Residence. Open 01.06.-18.08.2019.
